Did You Know?

Dale (Dayle) Robertson was born in Harrah on July 14, 1923, and became a well-known actor. He starred in several TV series including Tales of the Wells Fargo, The Iron Horse, and Death Valley Days. While he was stationed in California during the war he had a photograph taken of him and posted in the window of photographer. Even though he never had formal acting lessons his photo was discovered, and he was contacted by film agents. Before serving in the US Army during World War II he was a professional boxer. He was wounded twice while serving in the Army and received the Bronze and Silver Stars and the Cross of Lorraine. Later in life he retired to his ranch in Yukon where he continued his passion for horses. He passed away at the age of 89 on February 27, 2013.
